CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

"The purchasing responsibility is sometimes defined as buying materials of the right quality, in the right quantity, at the right time, at the right price, from the right source."¹

One may read the above quotation and think to himself that this business of purchasing sounds quite simple. There are just those five basic requirements to meet and that is all there is to it. Upon closer examination and after giving the matter a little thought, it can readily be seen that each of the five requirements to be met in performing the function of purchasing presents its own set of problems to be met and solved by the purchasing agent. When we add the five sets of problems together, we find that the task of the purchasing agent is not an easy one.

In discussing the duties of the government purchasing agent, Reck says that the function of purchasing is to make maximum use of the dollar in a limited budget, with minimum waste.²

While Reck is saying essentially the same thing as was said above in the quotation by Heinritz, it seems that he has the public schools in mind when he says it. Actually this is the problem facing the purchasing agents of our public schools today. It is his job to make the maximum use of the dollar in a limited budget, and many times the budget is quite limited, while keeping waste at a minimum.

Purpose of the Study

It has been the purpose of this study to find out in a general way how the public schools in Illinois carry out their purchasing functions and to see if there are any procedures which they might adopt to give themselves a greater return for their dollar spent.

Procedures Used in the Study

The following procedures were used in this study in view of the purpose mentioned above.

1. Interviews were conducted with a business manager of a typical public school system in Illinois and with the assistant business manager of a state university in Illinois.
2. A review of periodicals and books pertaining to purchasing in schools was made with regard to purchasing procedures being used.
3. A survey questionnaire was developed and sent to business managers of fifty public schools in Illinois.
4. Schools contacted were asked to supply samples of their purchasing forms to be used in the appendix of this paper.
5. Replies to the questionnaires were evaluated and information furnished was tabulated and interpreted.
6. Conclusions were reached and recommendations were made based on the information furnished by the study.

Limitations of the Study

This study does not intend to examine all the problems of purchasing for the public schools. It is rather a sampling of the purchasing procedures used by some of the public schools in Illinois.

Questionnaires were sent only to school systems having a business manager listed in the Directory of the Illinois Schools 1959-1960. This one fact limits the study considerably in that there was no inquiry into the purchasing procedures used by schools not employing a business manager. Here we eliminate almost all of the schools in Southern Illinois.

A questionnaire was sent to only one school in Cook County as a random sampling. In other counties containing more than one school system with a business manager, questionnaires were sent at random, with only one questionnaire going to a county in some instances.

CHAPTER II

PRESENTATION OF INFORMATION FURNISHED BY THE QUESTIONNAIRE

SECTION A: GENERAL INFORMATION

The information for the following section is taken from the questionnaires returned by business managers of the various public schools contacted. A total of 50 questionnaires were sent out and of these, 46, or 92 per cent were returned prior to the date of cut-off for analysis of the information. All statements of comparison and percentages in the following presentation will be based on the 46 questionnaires returned.

Enrollment of Schools Contacted

In an effort to determine the size of the schools from which information was being gathered, the following question was asked of the purchasing agent; "What is the total enrollment of the school or schools served by you?"

To this question there was a rather large variance in the answers received. The enrollment of the schools contacted ranged from 500 to nearly 19,000. This information is shown in detail in Table I.

Who May Act as Purchasing Agent

Of the 46 schools reporting, 37, or 80.4 per cent have the business manager as the authorized purchasing agent. Purchasing for the remaining 19.6 per cent of the schools is done by such as the assistant superintendent, the director of finance, the business assistant, the superintendent, or a combination of these people.

TABLE I

ENROLLMENT OF SCHOOLS SERVED BY PURCHASING AGENT³

It appears that some of the positions mentioned above may be very nearly the same with the difference being primarily in title only. This information is summarized in Table II.

all purchases for the school. The primary exception to this seems to be that in some schools, 29, or 63 per cent of those reporting permit persons other than the purchasing agent to buy "small items" chargeable to the school without following regular purchasing procedures.

Limits of the Budget

In making maximum use of his dollar, the purchasing agent must be constantly aware of the limits of his budget.

In commenting on their respective budgets, 45, or 97.8 per cent of the people replying said that they have a policy of periodically reviewing their budget. This review of the budget is done by various school officials and at varying periods of time. Table III shows who reviews the budget, and Table IV shows how often it is done.

When asked about additional funds, 40, or 87 per cent of the people replied that if funds as appropriated were exhausted, they would have access to contingent funds of some kind. Six, or 13 per cent said that they have no funds available other than as appropriated in their budget.

The question of a dollar-limit on purchases brought a wide range of answers concerning the amount of the limit. Regarding the limit itself, 27, or 58.7 per cent said that they do have a dollar-limit on what they may purchase, 17, or 37 per cent said that they have no limit, and 2, or 4.3 per cent did not choose to answer this question.

As to the amount of the limit imposed upon the purchasing agent, the answers ranged from $25 to $500. Table V shows a detailed breakdown of this information.

SECTION B: REQUISITIONING

When asked about the requisitioning of materials, 100 per cent of those replying said that they have an established procedure for handling requisitions. Forty-three, or 93.5 per cent have a special requisition form which they use in requesting materials.

Most of the schools indicated that they have a definite person or persons who may submit a requisition for materials to the purchasing agent. Table VI summarizes this information.

Twenty-five, or 54.4 per cent said that the people who requisition materials may ask for a certain "brand name" with no other brand being accepted. However, only 4, or 8.7 per cent said that they always buy the "brand name" asked for. Thirty-six, or 78.1 per cent said that they do not always, and 3, or 6.5 per cent said that they usually buy the brand asked for. Three people gave no answer to this question.

SECTION C: SECURING BIDS

One of the most useful tools of the purchasing agent in getting the maximum value for his dollar is the competitive bid. Table VII will summarize some of the information received regarding the securing of bids by the purchasing agent.

In determining to whom bid requests will be sent the purchasing agents said that they refer to their bidders lists, their own experience with the various vendors, the requisition and the directions of the board of education. Table VIII shows this information in greater detail.

When asked if bidders are permitted to see all bids with which their bid is being compared, the purchasing agents gave the following answers. Six, or 13 per cent said yes, before the order is placed; 27, or 58.7 per cent said yes, after the order is placed; 4, or 8.7 per cent said yes, anytime; 1, or 2.2 per cent said yes, after filing a request to do so; 4, or 8.7 per cent said yes, after the bid opening; 1, or 2.2 per cent said yes, at the bid opening; 2, or 4.3 per cent said yes, after the bid is approved by the board of education; and 1, or 2.2 per cent gave no answer to this question. No one said that the bidders were never permitted to see the bids of their competitors. Table IX presents a summary of the above information.

Thirty-one cases, or 67.4 per cent reported that they have some regulation concerning how many bids they are required to have before making a purchase. Table X presents this information in detail.

Advertising for Bids

Under certain circumstances when the purchasing agent wishes to extend an invitation to bid to vendors other than those on his bidders list, he will advertise for bids. While most of the purchasing agents contacted do advertise for bids, there is a wide range in their policies as to when they are required to advertise for bids. Table XI summarizes the policies of the various schools as to when they are required to advertise for bids.

The first part of the paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) as $t \rightarrow \infty$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) tend to zero as $t \rightarrow \infty$ if and only if the matrix A is stable.

In the second part of the paper, the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) is studied as $t \rightarrow 0$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) tend to zero as $t \rightarrow 0$ if and only if the matrix A is stable.

The third part of the paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) as $t \rightarrow \infty$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) tend to zero as $t \rightarrow \infty$ if and only if the matrix A is stable.

In the fourth part of the paper, the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) is studied as $t \rightarrow 0$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) tend to zero as $t \rightarrow 0$ if and only if the matrix A is stable.

The fifth part of the paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) as $t \rightarrow \infty$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) tend to zero as $t \rightarrow \infty$ if and only if the matrix A is stable.

In the sixth part of the paper, the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) is studied as $t \rightarrow 0$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) tend to zero as $t \rightarrow 0$ if and only if the matrix A is stable.

After it has been decided that an advertisement for bids will be made, comes the decision as to with whom the advertisement will be placed. This decision is probably a part of the school's operating procedure, but it was indicated that the decision is made by various officials in the different schools. In 23, or 50 per cent of the cases, the business manager makes this decision, however in other schools it is determined by others in the system as shown in Table XII.

SECTION D: DETERMINING SUCCESSFUL BIDDER

After the bid requests have been returned to the purchasing agent, comes the task of determining the successful bidder. One might say that whoever submits the lowest bid should receive the order, but there are a number of other factors to be considered when analyzing bids.

One case, or 2.2 per cent reported that the lowest bidder always receives the order; 3, or 6.5 per cent reported that the lowest bidder usually gets the order and 42, or 91.3 per cent said that something other than low bid is considered when determining the successful bidder. Table XIII summarizes some of the things considered by the purchasing agent when analyzing bids.

TABLE XIII
THINGS CONSIDERED OTHER THAN LOW BID

Things Considered	No. of Cases	Per Cent of Total
Quality	45	97.8
Service rendered by vendor	38	82.6
Delivery date	33	71.7
Discounts or other terms	18	39.1
Transportation costs	17	37.0

Twenty-five cases, or 54.4 per cent said that they also give some preference to Illinois companies or local vendors, while 19, or 41.3 per cent said that they give no such preference. One case reported that special preference is given to Illinois companies, but only in the purchase of coal.

Thirty-seven, or 80.4 per cent said that the purchasing agent may reject any bid received, while 8, or 17.4 per cent said that he may not, and 1, or 2.2 per cent gave no answer to this question. Only 2, or 4.3 per cent said that if they reject one bid, they must reject all bids.

"If two or more companies return identical bids, how do you determine the successful bidder?" A number of those replying to this question said that this has never happened to them, or that it is not likely to happen, however they gave answers based upon what they would do under these circumstances. The answers to this question are summarized in Table XIV.

SECTION E: PLACING THE ORDER

After the successful bidder has been determined by careful analysis of the bids submitted, comes the next step in the purchasing procedure or the issuing of the purchase order.

Forty-four, or 95.7 per cent said that they use a special purchase order form for ordering, and 2, or 4.3 per cent gave no answer to this question.

Forty, or 87 per cent of those replying said that they split orders to take advantage of the low bid on each item requested, while 2 cases, or 4.3 per cent said that they issue orders to the low bidder on the entire lot on an all-or-none basis. Four did not answer this question.

When asked if the board of education must approve all purchases, 7, or 15.2 per cent replied yes; 36, or 78.3 per cent said no; and 3, or 6.5 per cent gave no answer.

A purchase order issued by a school is not complete unless it carries the signature of some official of the school. Table XV shows who signs the purchase orders for the various schools.

CHAPTER III

INTERPRETATION OF DATA

The information obtained from the questionnaires and from publications referred to may be summarized in the following statements.

SECTION A: GENERAL INFORMATION

1. The enrollment of schools contacted ranges from 500 to 19,000.
2. In most school systems the business manager acts as the purchasing agent.
3. In most instances the purchasing agent makes all purchases for the school.
4. Over 97 per cent of the schools have a policy of periodically reviewing their budget, and this is usually done by the business manager, the superintendent, the board of education, or a combination of these.
5. Most schools have access to contingent funds if their appropriated funds are exhausted.

SECTION B: REQUISITIONING

1. All schools have an established procedure for requisitioning materials, including a special requisition form and a specified person or persons who submit the requisitions to the purchasing agent.
2. Most purchasing agents do not always buy the "brand name" asked for on the requisition.

SECTION C: SECURING BIDS

1. Most schools provide a form for bidding although only about half require that all bids be on their form.
2. Only about 28 per cent of the schools make all purchases subject to competitive bid.
3. Nearly all purchasing agents maintain a list of prospective bidders, and they all reserve the right to remove the bidders from the list.

4. Over 95 per cent said that all bids are open to public inspection.
5. About half of those commenting said that bids may be withdrawn or revised before the order is issued, and an equal number said that they may not.
6. Telephone and telegraph bids are accepted by about half of those reporting, but in about 35 per cent of the cases it must be in an emergency.
7. About 71 per cent said that telephone and telegraph bids must be confirmed in writing to be valid.
8. Most purchasing agents rely on their own experience with vendors and on their bidders list in sending out requests for bids.
9. Over 97 per cent allow competing bidders to inspect all bids, although the circumstances under which this is done may vary.
10. There is no over-all regulation as to the number of bids required although most schools specify some number for their own system.
11. About 48 per cent indicated that they are required to advertise for bids under certain circumstances, while about 28 per cent said that they are not required to advertise for bids.
12. In about 75 per cent of the cases, either the business manager or the board of education decides with whom to advertise for bids.

SECTION D: DETERMINING SUCCESSFUL BIDDER

1. Over 90 per cent reported that they consider things other than low bid when determining successful bidder.
2. About half of those reporting said that they give some preference to Illinois companies or local merchants when awarding orders.
3. Over 80 per cent said that they may reject any bid received.
4. When identical bids are received, the order is awarded at the option of the purchasing agent in over 50 per cent of the cases.

SECTION E: PLACING THE ORDER

1. Over 95 per cent use a special purchase order form.
2. About 87 per cent split orders so as to take advantage of low price on individual items.
3. Most cases reported that the board of education does not have to approve all purchases.
4. In over 78 per cent of the cases the business manager signs the purchase orders.

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Conclusions

1. There seems to be no over-all regulation governing purchasing in the public schools of Illinois.
2. The purchasing procedures seem to be similar in all schools contacted regardless of differences such as size of the school, location of the school, who acts as purchasing agent, etc.
3. Most materials needed by the various school personnel are obtained by following a definite requisitioning procedure.
4. Purchasing agents usually try to secure the "brand name" of merchandise asked for, although not always.
5. It seems that competitive bidding is not being used as much as it might be.
6. Most purchasing agents are allowed to use their own discretion in sending out for bids and in awarding orders.
7. Purchasing agents rely upon their past experience with vendors in making decisions relating to securing bids and issuing orders.
8. Generally speaking, bids are open to public inspection.
9. Most schools use their own specially prepared forms in purchasing, such as requisition forms, bid forms, purchase order forms, etc.

Recommendations

1. A set of general purchasing procedures should be established as a guide for the purchasing agents in all public schools in Illinois, possibly by some department of the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.
2. Because of the differences in needs of individual schools, the details of purchasing procedures should be left to the individual schools as much as possible.
3. Each school should have a detailed procedure for purchasing in writing established or approved by the board of education.

4. The superintendent should be directly responsible to the board of education for purchasing with the purchasing agent reporting to the superintendent.⁵
5. Each school should have an established procedure whereby teachers or others may purchase low-cost items which are needed at once without following regular procedures.
6. Purchasing should be based on competitive bidding as much as possible.
7. All bids should be open to public inspection.
8. Purchases should be made from local merchants only if they can supply the quality merchandise desired at the lowest price.⁶
9. Brand names may be used to designate a quality of merchandise desired, especially if the school is small and has no facilities for testing and analyzing goods to determine quality.⁷
10. Purchasing agents should buy the brand name asked for on requisitions unless they can demonstrate that another brand is of equal or better quality.
11. Each school should have a policy of periodically reviewing its budget.
12. Purchasing agents should be allowed to consider factors other than the low bid in awarding an order.
13. Orders should be split so as to take advantage of the low bid on each item requested.
14. All orders should be signed by the superintendent or the business manager.

APPENDIX

LETTER TO BUSINESS MANAGER

1600 S. 12th Street
Charleston, Illinois

Dear

In partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree Master of Science in Education at Eastern Illinois University, I am making a study of the purchasing procedures used in the public schools of Illinois. The study should not only fulfill graduation requirements, but should provide information which will be useful to Superintendents and Business Managers in our public schools.

I will appreciate your reply to the enclosed questionnaire. While I have tried to include questions concerning general purchasing procedures as I see them, I have no doubt missed some important points. If you think of anything else which will be of value in this study, please make a note of it on the questionnaire form. Your reply will be kept strictly confidential, and your suggestions and comments will be greatly appreciated.

TO THE BULK DEALERS ADDRESSED:

The Boards of Education of the Naperville Public Schools have again decided to purchase gasoline directly from tank wagon or bulk dealers.

We have a 1000 gallon tank buried and own our own pump. They are located inside the fence near the stadium. It shall be the responsibility of the supplier of gasoline to maintain a sufficient amount of gasoline in the tank.

During the school year of 1957-58, a total of 17,000 gallons of gasoline was purchased.

If you are interested in supplying gasoline, will you please quote a delivered price in relation to the posted price as of the time of delivery?

As you probably know, schools are required to pay neither state sales tax nor federal tax.

Please have your bid in the hands of the undersigned no later than August 1, 1958.

PURCHASING PROCEDURES

The following is the procedure necessary for purchases of any kind that are to be billed to the School Board:

There are four copies of every purchase order made by . . . They are used as follows:

- a. White: This copy is to go to the company from which the order is being purchased.
- b. Yellow: This copy is to come back to the office for our permanent records.
- c. Blue: This is to remain with the person requesting the order as a permanent record of the order.
- d. Pink: This is to be sent to the office when the materials ordered have been received.

When material is to be ordered come to the office and get order blanks. Fill out the blank in full. This includes the name of the company from whom purchased, where the material is to be shipped, the department or teacher ordering, and the information relative to the material needed.

After the purchase order is made out it must be approved by Mr. Price or Mr. Williams according to the type of material being purchased. Mr. Price signs all educational material purchase orders. Mr. Williams signs all other purchase orders.

When the purchase has been approved the white copy will be sent to the company from whom the purchase is being made and the yellow copy put on permanent file in the business office. WHEN YOU HAVE RECEIVED THE MATERIAL YOU ARE TO BRING THE PINK COPY TO THE OFFICE GIVING US PROOF THAT THE MATERIALS WERE RECEIVED. No invoice will be paid without this pink copy being brought in as proof of receipt.

It will be a great help to us in our bookkeeping and you in your purchasing, if you will follow these few steps every time you want to order.

Purchase of supplies without purchase order.

Increasing pains in the school district make it increasingly difficult to control items to which an item purchased shall be allocated when the date of purchase and the date of coding the invoice are so far apart and memory fails. In order to facilitate the matter of allocating funds in the case of small purchases for maintenance purposes you are asked to follow the procedure outlined below.

1. Use the Purchase Requisition Form, available in the school office.
2. Purchase approval should be given by the Building and Grounds Supervisor by phone or in person prior to purchase. In the event that the Building and Grounds Supervisor cannot be located, you should contact the Business Manager to gain approval for purchase.
3. Supplies to be purchased should be listed, and, if known, list the name of the store from which supplies will be purchased. Place the third copy of the requisition in the school office prior to departure from the school to be mailed to the Central Administration Office through the school mail service.
4. Purchaser should carry the purchase requisition along to the store.
5. Ask the supplier to show purchase requisition number on the invoice.
